DEFENDANT, VICTAULIC COMPANY OF AMERICA'S MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF ITS MOTION TO DISMISS PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT

In its Complaint, the plaintiff, Spiniello Companies (“Spiniello”) has failed to state a claim against the defendant, Victaulic Company of America (“Victaulic”). Consequently, pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), Victaulic moves the Court to dismiss it from this case.

BACKGROUND

In the caption of its Complaint, Spiniello names both Victaulic as well as Brico Industries Inc. as defendants. See Complaint attached as Exhibit A. Yet, Spiniello has completely failed to make a viable claim against Victaulic in any of the five counts that it has alleged. Indeed, in the sixty-six paragraph Complaint, plaintiff’s only allegations against Victaulic are that “Defendant Brico Industries Inc. is a division of Victaulic,” and “At all times relevant to this Complaint, Spiniello, Brico and Victaulic were involved in trade and commerce within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.” See Complaint ¶¶ 2, 65. Other than identifying Victaulic as a party, the Complaint makes no other mention of Victaulic or its involvement in any of the allegations for breach of contract, negligent misrepresentation, negligent design, breach of express and implied warranties, or violation of Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93A.

ARGUMENT

A motion to dismiss under Mass. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) should be granted when it appears that plaintiff cannot prove a set of facts in support of its claim that would entitle it to relief. Anzalone v. Massachusetts Bay Trans. Auth., 403 Mass. 119, 121 (1988). When evaluating the sufficiency of a complaint, the Court must accept as true the factual allegations of the complaint. Manning v. Zuckerman, 388 Mass. 8, 9-10 (1983). Accepting all of the allegation in Spiniello's Complaint as true, the plaintiff has failed to make any allegations against Victaulic.

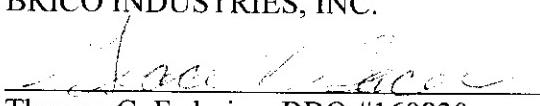

All of the allegations contained in the Complaint regard Brico, a wholly owned subsidiary of Victaulic. See generally Complaint. As there are no allegations made against Victaulic, it is proper for the Court to dismiss it from this case.

CONCLUSION

Wherefore, for all the foregoing reasons, the defendant, Victaulic Company of America, requests that the Court grant its Motion to Dismiss.
